SENATE KILLS IMMIGRATION BUREAU

Santa Fe, N. M., June 1.—The house adjourned this morning shortly after convening. Just why it did so nobody seems to know. A number of explanations are given for the action by those who profess to be on the inside. Some say that there had been a dispute among the members of the committee on investigation. Others say that the adjournment was made at the request of the governor, who wanted another day in which to consider the bond bill, as that bill originated in the house and any action taken by him would have to be communicated to the house first. Still others say that the adjournment was closely connected with the badly muddled senatorial situation. The best explanation is that a situation had arisen which did not look exactly good to Messrs. Baca, Burg and Llewellyn, and they decided to "play safe."

The consideration by the senate this morning of the general appropriation bill served, among other things, to bring out in sharp relief the differences between the senate democrats.

The bill, which is a lengthy one, had been read in full the third time and some minor committee amendments had been adopted. Senator Holt then moved the passage of the bill as amended. Senator Barth had several amendments which he proceeded to offer. Without exception, they were promptly laid on the table. On most of these amendments the democrats, with the exception of Senator Hinkle, voted with Senator Barth and the republicans, with the exception of Senators McCoy and Sulzer, voted against him.

Senator Mabry offered an amendment proposing to strike out Section 11, of the bill, appropriating something like $22,000 in the aggregate to various charitable institutions and hospitals located in different cities of the state.

Senators Mabry and McCoy spoke in favor of the amendment, and Senator Holt made a vigorous speech in opposition to it, at the conclusion of which he moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Senator Barth also sought to amend the bill by incorporating an appropriation for the support of the bureau of immigration, and also for the mounted police, but both of these amendments were killed by a vote of 16 to 8. Senator McCoy voting with the democrats and Senator Hinkle with the republicans. The effect of the defeat of these amendments is to put out of business both the immigration bureau and the mounted police.

The general appropriation bill also carried an amount for the expenses of the corporation commission practically identical with that of the bill which the governor recently vetoed. Senator Barth attempted to amend this section so as to make the appropriation conform to what he believed to be the governor's idea of what the appropriation should be, but in this also, he was voted down.

On the mounted police and immigration bureau amendments the vote was 16 to 8, while on the amendment striking out the appropriation for the charitable institutions the vote was 20 to 4. Senators Barth, Evans, Mabry and McCoy favoring the amendment. As amended, the bill was passed by a vote of 18 to 6, those voting against the bill being Senators Alldredge, Barth, Evans, Mabry, McCoy and Romero.

The senate also passed the bill known as the corrupt practices act, and one abolishing the insurance department and placing it under control of the corporation commission, besides a large number of bills of minor or local importance.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF A TURKEY RANCH?

The Milbourns, father and sons, who live northwest of town, have found the Estancia Valley a productive country, and they can be depended upon to start something new whenever something new gives promise of success. They have made success of farming, and now they are branching out with a side line in the shape of a turkey ranch.

That sounds funny, doesn't it? But that's what they are doing.

They have now between one hundred and two hundred young turkeys in thriving condition, and intend to hatch enough more to make an even three hundred.

The Estancia Valley is an ideal poultry country—there is no question about that. The cool nights are a little hard on newly hatched fowls, a trouble easily remedied, and aside from that conditions are as nearly ideal as they could be. There are no spring rains to drown young chicks, the rains coming after the early hatches are well grown, and there is no dew to speak of.

Turkeys have been scarce and high the past few years, and it is certain that the Milbourns will make a good stroke in the turkey business this year.

THREE-YEAR BILL UP TO PRESIDENT

A dispatch from Santa Fe dated June 3, says that Senator Fall brought with him a copy of the three-year homestead law, the text of the bill being printed in the dispatch. We cannot see that it differs materially from the bill as heretofore printed in this paper, and whether the bill is supposed to be as agreed upon in conference is not specifically stated. The bill as printed has the three-year clause, makes it apply to enlarged homesteads, provides for five months leave of absence in the year, and requires one-sixteenth area cultivated second year and one-eighth third year, and double the area for enlarged homesteads.

The dispatch states that the bill was sent to the president Saturday.

After the services The Archbishop and Rev. Julius Hartmann were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Meyer at their residence, where a bounteous spread was served to the prelates and a few guests.

The Archbishop and Father Hartmann left last night for Willard, from which point they will go to Pinos Wells, where a class of about one hundred will be confirmed tomorrow.
